SERMON SERIES

5 THINGS THAT WILL DESTROY YOUR MARRIAGE

Presented Aug 18 – Sept 22

We dream about one day finding that special someone and starting a life together. What happens when life collides with that dream? How do we handle managing work, relationships, and obligations so we do not give our partner the leftovers? What do we do when we wake up and realize we have not kept God at the center of our relationship? How do we handle life when our expectations far exceed our realities and the person we thought would be our best friend forever lets us down? How do we reconcile forgiveness, truth, and hurt?

Today	Leftovers	John 13:34
Aug 25	Expectations	Ephesians 5:21
Sept 1	Leaving God Out	Genesis 2:18 and 1:28
Sept 8	Failing to Forgive	Matt 18: 21-35

THANK YOU

Thank You!!

A special thank you to Benny and Kevin Lewis for investigating, and implementing new equipment to our sound system in The Chapel! We have 4 new wireless mics, and an additional lapel mic. They have also removed some of the 3 miles of unneeded cable that has been lining The Chapel walls! They continue to work on a few speaker issues. Thank you for your outstanding work!!! Yeah!

Worship Leader Training

For all who have an interest to help lead worship on Sunday mornings, please join us for a training class on Sunday, August 25 after worship. Even if you are not sure, but have some interest; join us for an informative time. For additional info please see Rev. Anne.

Site Planning Committee

A new Site Planning Committee is being formed and we would like to know who would be interested on serving on this committee. Every- one is welcome to attend all meetings, however here are the guidelines...

1. Pray. Pray about what the Lord is asking of The Chapel.
2. Come with an open and loving heart. No suggestion is too outrageous and nothing is sacred.
3. Everyone in attendance will have a job to do. We are thrilled to have any and all comments, but that gets nothing accomplished. If you wish to join us, please be prepared to be part of the solutions!

This committee will meet monthly to gather information about the current facilities and plan for future expansion. They will gather facts and figures and present these to the appropriate committees for further action.

Current needs for this committee...secretary, volunteer coordinator, and other tasks to follow. The first Site Planning Committee meeting will be held, Monday, August 26th at 6:30 pm. The meeting will be one hour in length. Please see Rev. Anne for additional info.

Choir News

One of the most valuable aspects of music is the moments when there is the silence. Claude Debussy, the famous 20th century composer, recognized this when he said that “Music is the space between the notes.” (Turning Numbers into Knowledge: Mastering the Art of Problem Solving (2001) by Jonathan G. Koomey, p.96.) Why make sound at all if silence is so important? It isn’t about silence being the most important. It isn’t about sound being the most important. It is about the integral balance between the two.

Understanding the balance of silence and sound makes it possible to embrace a wide world of musical styles that offer praise to God. So that keeps us from thinking that “our” way is the right way. All ways that embody a right relationship to God’s teachings are the right way. God created hefty content with great style, so He is fully aware of what it takes to make something that is “tov”, the Hebrew word that He used in Genesis when he declared creation “good”. What it takes is to fulfill the function for which we were created by God, not the man interpreted version of that function, but the function for which God created each of us individually. This is to live in right relationship with God, our silences and our sounds in perfect balance with those God created us to make.

So, why are we confused about it when it comes to music? Perhaps that is because worship has been often misappropriated by popular culture, not just in our decade or the immediately preceding ones, but for centuries. Controlling the balances of silence and sound is something any architect or composer or theologian could tell you were essential to control over what people are expected to produce as a worshipful attitude toward God. This is because music and the arts can function as our emotional response to God. So, in my lifetime I have been told everything from if I didn’t behave effusively, waving my hands in the air and shouting in church, then I didn’t understand the joy of the Presence of God being told that to exude pleasure and joy in God’s Presence was unseemly. That isn’t what the musical praise of God is all about. That’s what those particular individual’s personal attempt to bring me into alignment with their brand of piety is about. I’m more interested in what God has to say on the subject, particularly on the subject of music and the arts as a means of worship. In the bible, God tells us both the silence and the sound have a place in God’s Presence.

One of the loveliest aspects of choir and music in church is to enable people to offer up their praise to God, the praise that comes from their hearts in their words and it is one of the essential goals of choir to cover lots and lots of different types of music to see what new or old way those styles have to offer us in terms of worshiping God. I want to compliment Fields Chapel for its open embracing of singing everything from Harry Belafonte and Bill Withers to Gregorian chant and learning to embrace the silence and the sound balance in all forms.

Truthfully, there is no blank space in worship or in music. This was, after all, Claude Debussy’s point. The blank space is the spot where the Spirit moves in to allow us to understand the sound.
